Prevenzione e Interazione
nello Spazio Trans-Mediterraneo

This international workshop is part of a wider program (PRIMED) aiming to establish a platform to prevent and contrast religious radicalisms. More specifically, the Stresa workshop will gather academics, institutional figures such as practitioners and Muslim leaders and will dedicate great attention to the involvement of the educational systems, Islamic communities and local administrations in preventing and contrasting radicalization. In this direction, we will share experiences involving different social actors, pursuing a multi-level strategy, starting from programs to implement education to coexistence and interfaith dialogue. In this approach, a strong, constructive and faithful relation between political institutions, police corps and civil society is necessary and strategic.

Working languages will be Italian and English.
